Soda ban lawsuit revives controversy

American Beverage Association says the ban should have gone through City Council, not Board of Health ◗ NAACP, Hispanic Federation get involved ◗ Advocates, rights groups call soda ban 'arbitrary' and cite race-based repercussions

GETTY IMAGES

▶ The big soda ban is under fire from a number of groups, including the American Beverage Association, the NAACP and the Hispanic Federation.

The American Beverage Association and other co-plaintiffs presented opening arguments yesterday in a lawsuit alleging that the Board of Health "overstepped its authority by trying to issue new policy" with the soda ban.

The soda ban is a new regulation prohibiting the sale of sodas larger than 16 ounces in arenas, restaurants, and movie theaters. It does not apply to businesses like 7-11, where the majority of sales comes from packaged food as opposed to prepared food.

Those businesses are affected by retail regulations, not health department regulations, according to J. Justin Wilson, a senior research analyst at the Center for Consumer Freedom.

The ban is set to take effect in March.

Quoted

"[Bloomberg] treats people like they're children."
JUSTIN WILSON, A SENIOR RESEARCH ANALYST AT THE CENTER FOR CONSUMER FREEDOM

The ban has been largely credited to Mayor Michael Bloomberg, as one of his health policies directed at combatting obesity.

Amicus briefs were filed for the ABA case by the NAACP New York State Conference and the Hispanic Federation, among others, putting forth race-based complaints, asserting the ban will affect minorities and minority business owners in particular.

More than one way to skim the fat

NY NAACP President Hazel Dukes called the ban "neither prudent nor helpful in the overall fight against obesity."

"A real solution would address issues like access to healthier foods, particularly in the food desserts that exist in low-income neighborhoods," Dukes said.

She also pointed out that the ban "impacts corner bodegas but not grocery stores," thereby risking "disproportionately impacting the people who can least afford it: those who frequent corner markets and not gourmet stores."

The ABA said the regulations should have gone through the elected City Council, rather than the mayor-appointed Board of Health.

Judge suspends stop-and-frisk ban in Bronx

Judge Shira Scheindlin, a Manhattan federal judge who ordered the NYPD to stop carrying out their stop-and-frisk policy around some buildings in the Bronx, lifted that restriction yesterday, the NY Post reports.The city requested she hold off on enacting her ruling pending their appeal. Scheindlin agreed, saying that the restriction "cannot be effectively implemented." METRO/DT

Stringer calls for probe into subway deaths

Manhattan Borough President Scott Stringer called for an investigation by the MTA yesterday after a spate of subway fatalities. Three subway deaths within 24 hours last weekend is putting the city on pace to surpass the 55 victims hit by trains in 2012, he said. In a letter, Stringer asked the MTA to review safety programs that could prevent these types of deaths. "Too many people are dying in our subways," he said. METRO/AB

Rockaways victims left in the cold

▶ Some residents in the Rockaways are still without heat.

Earlier this week, Mayor Michael Bloomberg announced that the Rapid Repairs program had completed work on more than 10,000 homes damaged by Sandy.

But with temperatures dropping to the teens, and the National Weather Service quoting wind chill factors "as low as 2 below," concerns are mounting for those still waiting on heat and hot water.

Valerie Close of the Queens Congregation United for Action reported that a lot of people in the Rockaways still don't have heat. She estimated that it could be between 5,000 and 6,000 residents.

People who have electricity are using space heaters, she said, but there aren't enough to go around, "so you have the whole family crowded in one room." There are still people without running water as well, she said.

Close said that while Rapid Repairs is in the Rockaways, that a local joke is: "It's not so rapid."

"I'm guessing they're doing the best they can," Close said. "At this point I don't know what else to think." METRO/DT

What to do after the Jan. 26?

A lot of people are concerned about the FEMA hotel program running out after Jan. 26, Close related. "They're wondering where they're supposed to go," Close said, noting the below freezing temperatures and homes still in disrepair. Mold is reportedly still a major problem in some homes.

Close expressed hope that FEMA may extend the program again, as they did earlier this month, but said the instability is wearing on her and others. "You didn't know one day or the other if you're going to have any place to live," she said.

Bronx murder rate dips to record low

BRONX. The Bronx murder rate is at a record low, Bronx Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr. announced yesterday. According to Diaz, 112 murders occurred in the Bronx in 2012, which is an all-time low since the early 1960s. In 2011, 148 people were murdered in the borough.

"We are fed up with the negative stereotypes and the erroneous images about who we are as a borough," Diaz said. "The Bronx is a different place from when I was a teenager in the '80s and '90s, and hopefully we can make 2013 safer."

Diaz said the Bronx's murder rate is lower than homicide rates in Philadelphia, Boston and Newark. METRO/AB

NYPD's newest tool: The scan-and-frisk?

In his State of the NYPD speech yesterday morning at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, Commissioner Ray Kelly discussed new technology in development that may be used to scan people for concealed firearms.

The device detects "terahertz," a natural radiation emitted by people and objects, according to Kelly. If the radiation is blocked, by a gun or other object, the device will highlight the blockage.

"Right now the technology is being tested with encouraging results at the NYPD range Rodman's Neck in the Bronx," Deputy Commissioner Paul Browne reported.

The device was too big and its range too small at first, but it now seems promising that the it could be used in a truck to detect concealed weapons on passersby "clearly from greater distances," Browne said.

The NYPD expects to use the device "not in the distant future," he added.

Browne did not comment on whether the scanner could be used to phase out the controversial stop-and-frisk policy, or whether passersby would be aware that they were being scanned.

New York Civil Liberties Union Executive Director Donna Lieberman expressed both concern, but said, "to the extent that this technology reduces the abuse of stop-and-frisk that harms hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers every year, we're intrigued by the possibilities."

Marquee moment for historic theater

Mayor Michael Bloomberg and Brooklyn Borough President Marty Markowitz broke ground yesterday on the restoration of the historic Loew's Kings Theatre in Flatbush, Brooklyn. Originally constructed in 1929, the theater is the largest indoor theater in Brooklyn. Its design was influenced by the Palace of Versailles and Paris Opera House. The $93.9 million project will create more than 500 construction jobs and 50 permanent jobs, the city said. As part of the project, the theater will expand from 68,000 square feet to 93,000 square feet. METRO/AH

City Council: Bosses can't discriminate against the unemployed

Imagine struggling for months to find a job, only to find out that the first strike against you is that you are looking for one.

The City Council voted yesterday to prohibit employers from using employment status in hiring decisions.

Just over half — 51 percent — of unemployed New Yorker have been actively searching for work for six months, according to the Council.

But not everyone is on board — Mayor Michael Bloomberg has vowed to veto it, saying it would make employers fear potential lawsuits.

Park Slope resident Yvonne Girela, 53, told Metro that after taking time off to care for her dying brother, employers did not warm to her over-50, unemployed status.

"I get discriminated all the time because I'm unemployed," she said.

She makes candy lollipops as added income and keeps applying, hoping for a job in community outreach. METRO/AB

Teen arrested after 911 operator sees him with gun

A police officer tipped off 911 operators after seeing a teenager holding a handgun while riding a city bus.

According to police, on Jan. 22, an off-duty 911 operator was on an S40 bus in Staten Island.

Police Communications Technician Coryse Hercules, 28, saw another rider's eyes widen when an 18-year-old moved a gun from his pants to his backpack, police said. Hercules quickly texted a co-worker, who then alerted 911.

Minutes later, cops pulled the bus over. The teen moved away from his backpack, but Hercules pointed him out.

Raysean Alson, 18, was charged with criminal possession of a weapon.

The police found a semi-automatic pistol and loaded revolver in his backpack, which was reported stolen from Delaware, cops said. METRO/AB

Protecting your pet in frigid weather

BILLY BECERRA/METRO

▶ Short-haired dogs should wear coats or sweaters.

The ASPCA has safety tips for pet owners as the cold snap continues:

- Dogs can lose their scent in a snowstorm and get lost, so it's especially important in winter to use a leash and make sure all ID tags are firmly on.
- No short haircuts! It's important Fluffy stays warm in this chilly weather.
- Make sure your four-legged friend is completely dry after baths and before walks.
- Short-haired dogs should wear coats or sweaters that cover their backs, preferably with a high collar or a turtleneck.
- Never leave pets alone in a car, especially in winter. Temperatures drop very suddenly inside vehicles.
- A warm place to sleep is crucial, off the floor and away from drafts. Dog or cat beds with a pillow or blanket are recommended. METRO/DT

Christie heavy favorite to win re-election in NJ

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Gov. Chris Christie would easily defeat several opponents for re-election.

Three-quarters of New Jersey voters approve of Governor Chris Christie's job performance and nearly seven in 10 say he deserves to be elected to a second term in November, according to a Quinnipiac University poll released yesterday.

Christie's popularity skyrocketed since superstorm Sandy ripped through the state last fall.

The governor's embrace of President Obama and his rebuke of the Republican majority in the U.S. House of Representatives for its initial refusal to approve a storm aid package, cemented his image as capable of rising above partisanship.

According to the poll, Christie would easily defeat several potential Democratic opponents, including the state Senate's Democratic leader, Stephen Sweeney, and State Sens. Richard Codey and Barbara Buono.

Meanwhile, Newark Mayor Cory Booker — the Democrat once seen as posing the most serious challenge to Christie — is the most popular choice to win next year's U.S. Senate race.

While incumbent Democratic Sen. Frank Lautenberg enjoys a 50 percent approval rating, only a third of New Jersey voters want to see the 88-year-old lawmaker re-elected.

In a match-up against Lautenberg, Booker, who is 43, leads 51 to 30 percent, the poll found. REUTERS

Gowanus cleanup may reach $504M

GOWANUS. Cleaning the polluted Gowanus Canal in Brooklyn could cost as much as $504 million for the city, the Independent Budget Office reported yesterday. The canal, which has waters polluted with PCBs and metals like mercury and lead, was declared a Superfund site by the Environmental Protection Agency in 2010. The price tag for a cleanup might be in the range of $467 to $504 million, according to the IBO, which warns that New York City might have to pay a "substantial" share. Tanks to store waste water alone would cost about $78 million. The EPA will a host a public meeting about its plan tonight at 7 p.m. at the Joseph Miccio Community Center. METRO/AB

MIDTOWN. The Landmarks Preservation Commission approved a redesign of the city's iconic New York Public Library. According to Curbed, the Commission signed off on the proposed redesign, which would remove some bookshelves in the Rose Reading Room. The Norman Foster designs doubles the amount of public space in the building, according to the NYPL, and shows a light-filled space with views of Bryant Park. METRO/AB

"Laser pointers aimed at aircraft pose many dangers, including disrupting the vision of pilots," United States Attorney Loretta Lynch said. METRO/AB

US, Africa: Mali action counters Islamist threat

ERIC FEFERBERG/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

▶ A Malian soldier holds a machine gun as he stands guard at the entrance of a strategic bridge over the Niger river.

The United States and African leaders threw their full diplomatic weight yesterday behind a campaign to expel Islamist rebels from Mali, as French air strikes harried the al Qaeda-allied fighters in their strongholds.

For nearly two weeks, French jets and helicopters have been hitting carefully selected targets around rebel-held Malian towns such as Gao and Timbuktu, while African troops gather for a planned ground offensive against the Islamist forces.

Last week's bloody seizure of a gas plant in neighboring Algeria by Islamist guerrillas heightened fears in Africa and the West that Mali's north could become a launchpad for international attacks by al Qaeda.

After halting a surprise Islamist offensive southwards towards Mali's capital Bamako, French ground troops and Malian army soldiers backed by French armored vehicles are securing locations recaptured from the rebels in the last few days.

Charred rebel pick-up trucks destroyed by the French air strikes were also visible amid the mango trees.

The U.N.-mandated intervention in Mali was originally conceived as "African-led, African-owned," but with the Malian army in disarray and African neighbors scrambling to deploy troops, France has taken the lead in the operation.

Amid widening international support for the Mali operation, the EU is preparing a 450-member mission to help train the Malian army while the U.S. and Europe are helping fly in French troops and equipment. REUTERS

Who will pay?

International donors are due to meet in the Ethiopian capital Addis Ababa Jan. 29 to discuss the African military operation in Mali.

- France said they would be asked to provide about $452 million.
- France's Le Drian told France 24 that the 12-day-old French military operation in Mali had cost 30 million euros.
- "There is not much money for Africa. ... It's a low priority [for Barack Obama's U.S. administration]," said Vicki Huddleston, who served as U.S. ambassador for Mali in 2002-2005.

Iran stalling?

EU: Iran stalling on nuclear talks

Iran is stalling on fixing a date and location for a new round of talks on its nuclear program, the European Union's foreign policy chief said yesterday, but there is still hope that talks between Tehran and six world powers can begin soon.

EU officials have been in contact with Iranian negotiators repeatedly since December to try to prepare a new set of talks, which the West hopes will lead to Iran scaling back its nuclear work and avert the threat of another war in the Middle East.

But they have failed to agree on a plan so far.

"We proposed concrete dates and a venue in December," said Michael Mann, a spokesman for Catherine Ashton, who oversees contacts with Iran on behalf of United States, Russia, China, France, Britain and Germany. REUTERS

"Since then, we have been very surprised to see Iran come back to us again and again with new pre-conditions on the modalities of the talks." SPOKESMAN MICHAEL MANN

Clinton angrily defends her handling of Benghazi attack

Secretary of State Hillary Clinton yesterday angrily defended her handling of the Sept. 11 attack on the U.S. mission in the Libyan city of Benghazi and denied any effort to mislead people.

The attack by armed militants that killed U.S. Ambassador Christopher Stevens and three other Americans threatens to stain Clinton's legacy as secretary of state. It also may dent any hopes that Clinton, who mounted an unsuccessful presidential campaign in 2008, may run for the White House again in 2016.

By turns emotional and fierce, Clinton choked up as she spoke of comforting the victims' families and grew angry when a Republican senator accused the Obama administration of misleading the country over whether the Benghazi incident stemmed from a protest.

GOP criticisms

- Republicans harshly criticized her, and President Barack Obama's administration more generally, with one saying the Benghazi attack and the U.S. response displayed "woeful unpreparedness" for the events sweeping the region and another saying Clinton should have been fired.

"With all due respect, the fact is that we had four dead Americans," Clinton shot back as she testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, an appearance delayed more than a month because of her ill health.

"Was it because of a protest or was it because of guys out for a walk one night who decided they'd go kill some Americans? What difference, at this point, does it make?" she said, making chopping motions with her hands for emphasis.

Clinton cast the incident as part of a long history of such violence as well as the result of regional instability.

Clinton is expected to step down in the coming days once her successor, Senator John Kerry, is confirmed. REUTERS

Clinton says she never saw security requests for Benghazi

Secretary of State Hillary Clinton yesterday said she never saw the requests for additional security for the U.S. mission in Benghazi, Libya, which was attacked in September, because they were handled by other State Department officials and normally would not reach her level. Clinton was testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee about the September attack in Benghazi by Islamist militants. REUTERS

Manti Te'o tells Katie Couric he lied to maintain hoax

Notre Dame football star Manti Te'o told ABC News' Katie Couric that he had lied to keep up a hoax involving a nonexistent girlfriend two days before the Heisman Trophy winner was announced.

In a preview of the interview shown yesterday on "Good Morning America," Te'o talked about the girlfriend, Lennay Kekua.

He mourned her Sept. 12 death from cancer — but it later turned out that she never existed, except as part of an online fraud.

"Now I get a phone call on Dec. 6 saying that she's alive and then I'm going be put on national TV two days later," Te'o told Couric.

"And [they're going] to ask me about the same question. You know, what would you do?"

A Heisman contender, Te'o was passed over for the award, which went to Texas A&M quarterback Johnny Manziel.

"You stuck to the script," Couric said. "And you knew that something was amiss, Manti."

Te'o replied: "Katie, put yourself in my situation. ... My whole world told me that she died on Sept. 12. Everybody knew that." REUTERS

TV interview

This is Te'o's first on-camera interview since news broke of the fraud behind one the most widely recounted U.S. sports stories last year as Notre Dame made a drive toward the college football national championship game. Authorities charge three over 'Gozi' computer virus

NEW YORK. Federal prosecutors charged three people in as many countries with creating and distributing a computer virus that infected more than a million computers around the world, including some operated by the U.S. space agency and others by banks.

The Gozi virus infected at least 40,000 computers in the United States and caused millions of dollars in losses by stealing online banking credentials, the Manhattan U.S. Attorney's office said yesterday.

The defendants, Latvian Deniss Calovskis, Russian Nikita Kuzmin and Romanian Mihai Ionut Paunescu, used Gozi to steal millions of dollars from bank accounts in Europe, the United States and elsewhere, according to the indictment filed in U.S. District Court in Manhattan. REUTERS

Man sues Georgia for blocking 'GAYGUY' plate

ATLANTA. An Atlanta man is suing the state of Georgia after his application for a vanity license plate that he said described his sexual orientation was denied. State officials turned down the three choices — 4GAYLIB, GAYPWR and GAYGUY — that James Cyrus Gilbert, 30, submitted on Jan. 2 for a personalized tag, according to a lawsuit filed this month against the commissioner of the Georgia Department of Driver Services. "I am a gay man," Gilbert said. "I am a taxpayer. I pay my bills just like everyone else." REUTERS

Space's future vacuum cleaner

The U.S. recently unveiled a plan to clean up outer space.

They have been described as "space grave robbers," but the U.S. Defense Department agency DARPA will provide a valuable salvage service. The Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency has unveiled illustrated plans of a program that will scavenge defunct satellites and recycle them to build new ones. MWN

DARPA's viewpoint

"We're attempting to essentially increase the return on investment and try to find a way to really change the economics so that we can lower the cost [of military space missions]."
DARPA PROGRAM MANAGER DAVID BARNHART TOLD THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Agency identifies satellites to retire

In 2016, DARPA will launch a demonstration mission that seeks to resurrect an old antenna from a yet-to-be-determined decommissioned satellite. DARPA has identified about 140 retired satellites that it can choose from for its first test. DARPA staff said one way to keep costs down is for the mini-satellites to hitch a ride aboard available space on commercial rockets. MWN

Coco wants baby girl to be a lawyer

A good way for the world to forget that whole pesky drama of Ice-T's wife, Coco, canoodling with Oakland rapper AP.9 in December? For her to get knocked up with Ice-T's baby — at some point.

"I want a little girl!" Coco tells In Touch in this week's issue. "We already have the name — Chanel. I want her to be a lawyer!"

"Chanel-T" will have to wait a bit in the creation department, however, as Coco is filling in for the pregnant Holly Madison as star of the burlesque Peepshow at Las Vegas' Planet Hollywood Resort & Casino. "I want a little doll of my own!" she adds. "I could teach her to walk in heels and do her hair."

I, for one, cannot wait. The maternity wear alone is going to be priceless.

Stars react on Beyonce lip-syncing controversy

Singers and celebrities the world over are weighing in on the Beyonce lip-syncing controversy, with most saying they respect the fact she didn't sing live.

"Sometimes it happens when you are in certain stadiums and certain venues and things, they do pre-record stuff because you're going to have that terrible slap back," Jennifer Lopez told Jon Stewart on "The Daily Show." And Aretha Franklin, no stranger to singing at inaugurations, agreed: "I thought it was funny because the weather down there was about 46 or 44 degrees, and for most singers that is just not good singing weather," she told ABC News. "When I heard that, I just really cracked up. I thought it was really funny, but she did a beautiful job with the pre-record."

But perhaps it was Stephen Tyler who expressed his opinion best. When a TMZ cameraman asked what the Aerosmith frontman thought, he responded: "Beyonce's so hot she can do anything. Let's just get real."

Agreed.

Shriver filed for divorce in 2011 after it came to light that Schwarzenegger had fathered a child with the family's housekeeper, but Shriver has made no further action to move the divorce forward. "We're not fighting a war. I still hope for reconciliation," he tells Germany's Bild newspaper. "I still love Maria."

Cooper would love to take on Armstrong

Days after it was announced that J.J. Abrams was looking into producing a film about Lance Armstrong's rise and fall, actors are already lining up to play him. "I would be interested in [playing Armstrong]," Oscar-nominee Bradley Cooper tells BBC News. "I think he's fascinating."

Kelly Osbourne is reportedly engaged to Matthew Mosshart after a very hush-hush proposal a few weeks before Christmas, according to Us Weekly. "Kelly is the happiest she's ever been," a source says.

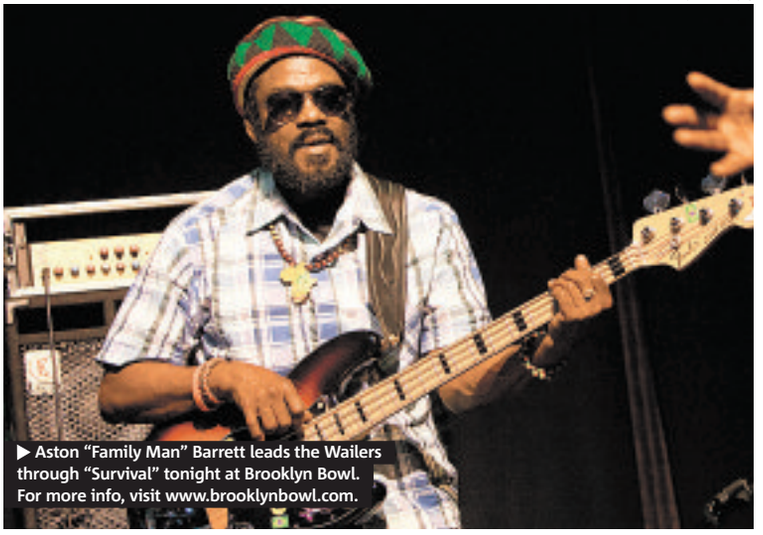
‘Survival’ of the fittest

Wailers founder Aston ‘Family Man’ Barrett on the militant Marley album that he is leading the band through in full tonight

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Aston “Family Man” Barrett leads the Wailers through “Survival” tonight at Brooklyn Bowl. For more info, visit www.brooklynbowl.com.

If you think the essence of Bob Marley & the Wailers includes waving a Red Stripe in the air and singing “every little thing is gonna be all right” along with a cover band, you may be surprised by what you hear at Brooklyn Bowl tonight.

Led by founding member Aston “Family Man” Barrett, the Wailers are playing the 1979 album, “Survival,” in its entirety. This is the first time the band has dedicated a tour to a single album since Marley’s death in 1981. The 10-song collection starts with the desperate “So Much Trouble in the World” and only goes into darker, more militant territory. So why this album? Why now?

“The crisis that’s happening around the globe right now, it’s reminding us of the ‘70s,” says Family Man. The 66-year-old Rastaman speaks like his signature way of playing bass. His voice is deep and he takes pauses that end right after you wonder if you’ll hear from him again. It’s sometimes tricky to decipher his words through his thick Jamaican patois.

He says that the times leading up to recording “Survival” were dark days: “Because the studio vibrations were so heavy, I keep away from the studio for about a week or two.”

Shortly before recording the album, Marley had survived an assassination attempt (which he deals with on the “Survival” song “Ambush in the Night”) and he had fired the band’s longtime manager. Family Man says the band wanted to bring somebody in to produce, which they had not done since early in their career.

“We said if we can’t get Quincy Jones to produce it, we produce it ourselves,” he says.

What’s in a name?

Family Man originally got his nickname because he was like another leader of the band. Marley was known as the Captain, and Barrett held down the low-end. But he grew into his nickname over the years in a different way.

“I was blessed with 23 daughters and 18 sons, 23 grand and two great-grands,” he reports.

How not to fight like an a—hole

The Hookup

AMBER MADISON
AMBERMADISONONLINE.COM

STOCKBYTE

Fighting in relationships is inevitable. This is not necessarily a bad thing — working through conflicts only makes your bond stronger. Of course, there are completely unproductive ways to fight, and when we're fired up it's easy to fall into those patterns. The best thing you can do to ensure a "good" fight is to know what you're pissed about, and make sure you express it.

Knowing why you're mad can be trickier than you might imagine. Think about the things we tend to yell about. They're often small: leaving dishes in the sink, not taking out the trash or being 30 minutes late. Generally speaking, these small behaviors aren't the actual problem. Maybe they're annoying, but there's probably something deeper going on that made them so infuriating in the first place.

What we're truly upset about is generally much more profound and less nitpicky than what we express. We feel neglected, walked on, rejected or unloved. But because it's hard to pinpoint one specific behavior that makes us feel this way, we grab onto something small yet tangible and have blowout fights about three dirty plates.

We get mad about things that are easy to get mad about. These things don't illuminate past scars, current insecurities or deep-seated fears. They let us get out all our pain and anger without having to admit how much control our partner has over our happiness. But they also distract us from having conversations about what we really need. These feelings could poison the relationship if left unattended.

These more difficult issues that we're not confessing to our partners (and maybe even to ourselves) are the ones we need to bring up. Maybe we can't do it articulately. Maybe we don't have "facts" to support it. And maybe it makes us sound a little more vulnerable than we'd like to admit. But only by revealing your deepest wounds does your partner have any chance to heal them.

Horoscope

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Don't be foolish enough to attempt to do something that you failed miserably at in the past. Unless you profit from your mistakes, you're destined to repeat them.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Even though your way of doing things might be superior to the methods of other people, unless you handle matters in a humble manner others will be unwilling to follow your lead.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Be careful what you say when making a suggestion. Your intention might be good, but your choice of words could be offensive.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Financial gains and losses are both possible during this cycle, so unless you're careful poor judgment could wreck your bottom line.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. It's essential that you distinguish between when to assert yourself and when to back off. If you get your signals crossed, you could end up looking bad.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Even though you're usually pretty good at keeping others' secrets, if you're not careful today, you could let something slip out.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Although you'll be exceptionally practical and prudent in areas where you have little to gain, strangely, you might be somewhat foolish when it comes to more costly matters. Reverse that formula.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Advice to others based upon personal knowledge and experience can be extremely helpful. The opposite would be true if you pretend to know something you really don't.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Be extremely careful, whether you're handling your own fiscal affairs or those of another. In either case, things could become perilous if you're sloppy.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Unless you schedule your time well, you could become very busy accomplishing nothing of any importance. Try to be proficient, not frenetic.

Don't spit where you eat, Apple

RE: "PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF APPLE: CHINA CRAVES FOREIGN BRAND ELECTRONICS" (METRO, JAN. 23) Let me get this straight: Apple uses slave labor in China to produce their products, poorly paid workers can't buy Apple products and now Tim Cook expects China to become its main market in the future. Well, Billionaire Cook could manufacture his Apple products here in the good old U.S.A. and pay his fellow countrymen and women a decent wage and still sell to the Chinese.
DIANE MOORE, VIA E-MAIL

Here's some good summer reading, kids

Every American should be required to read the Constitution and its amendments and every government official elected or appointed to office as our proxy should be required to read and fully understand each article and amendment. How can they take an oath to support and defend a Constitution they do not know? This also includes the Supreme Court. When the Supreme Court itself skews its interpretation, the fallacy becomes law. You'd be surprised how badly the Constitution has been manipulated, especially in the last half century. Every one of us is responsible because in our ignorance, we have blindly allowed it to happen. Abraham Lincoln would turn over in his grave if he knew that seven score and 10 years later, the government of the people, by the people, for the people has already perished from the Earth. CHARLES COUGHLIN, VIA E-MAIL

Washington wants YOU for the United States militia

RE: "RIGHT TO BEAR ARMS IS TO PROTECT US, NOT YOURSELF?" (METRO, JAN. 23) Letter writer Mary Raczko needs a crash course: George Washington said, "A free people ought not only to be armed and disciplined, but they should have sufficient arms and ammunition to maintain a status of independence from any who might attempt to abuse them, which would include their own government." The Militia Act of 1792 stated that all white males were by definition members of the militia. Whether or not you support the right to arms, you should at least support the right history of arms.

Date one of these hot bartenders

Valentine's Day is almost here — and if you're without a date, pull up a seat All of these cuties are single and ready to mingle — with you!

Lindsey Larkin

29, Upper West Side, bisexual
Where she works: 508, 508 Greenwich St., 212-219-2444

The fitness fanatic, singer/actress, head bartender and resident hot redhead knows the ingredients to dazzle a date.

What would you make to impress someone?
"I would make a Templeton Rye Old Fashioned the traditional way, (i.e., not with a bunch of smashed fruit in the bottom of a glass). Just a sugar cube covered with bitters, muddled, with Templeton stirred in and finished with a fat orange rind. And yes, I would seductively rim the glass with the rind before dropping it in. If you are the kind of man or lady that wants a smashed maraschino cherry at the bottom of your glass, you are not the date for me."

William Pacot

32, Williamsburg, straight
Where he works: Brasserie Beaumarchais, 409 W. 13th St., 212-675-2400

William is handsome, supercharming (but never-over-the-top) and regularly behind the bar at this Meatpacking District French bistro.

What you would make to impress someone?
"The Pomelo: Gin, passion fruit syrup, St. Germain, grapefruit bitters, a fresh squeeze of lemon juice with a lemon twist on the top. Or the Apple Pucker: Apple, lemon juice, fresh mint. Shake and top with champagne."

Angelee King

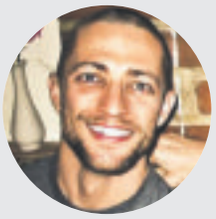
27, Financial District, straight
Where she works: Ava Lounge, 210 W. 55th St., 212-956-7020

After moving to NYC to model, Angelee left to travel and returned to bartend. The daughter of a NFL player, Ang is a huge sports fan, particularly football. When not behind the bar, she can be found kickboxing or searching for the next best brunch spot.

What would you make to impress someone?
"I'm torn between making a classic Absolut dirty martini with blue cheese-stuffed olives, or our specialty chili apple margarita. As a big tequila connoisseur, I don't think you can go wrong with adding jalapenos and tequila!"

Joshua Brandenburg,

31, Astoria, straight
Where he works: Forty Four, Royalton, 44 West 44th St., 212-944-8844

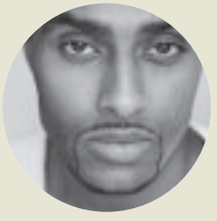


Joshua has been manning the bar at Royalton's Forty Four for five years and has created many of the cocktails for the menu. When's he's not mixing spirits, he's likely training. Outside of Royalton, Josh is a competitive fighter trained in Muay Thai, Jiu Jitsu and mixed martial arts.

What would you make to impress someone?
"Chocolate Manhattan. It's made with Woodford Reserve bourbon, Carpano Antica, Godiva liqueur and Fee's aromatic bitters. I serve it in a coupe glass and finish it with a chocolate straw."

Bruck Tekle

30, Washington Heights, straight
Where he works: Ovest, 513 W. 27th St., 212-967-4392

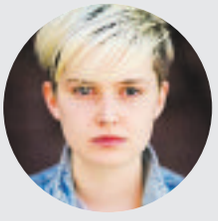


Meet Bruck: bachelor, model and mixologist at Ovest Pizzoteca & Bar by Luzzo's. Bruck's drink of choice is usually a black label on the rocks, but says if he had to choose another, he'd go with the Brandy Dear Friend, made with black grapes, fresh basil leaves, lime juice, simple syrup, St. Germain and brandy.

What you would make to impress someone?
"Keeping it simple is the way to go; therefore, my drink of choice for her would be a Cucumber Gin Martini. It's a well-balanced drink — not too sweet and not too liquorish. Just muddle fresh cucumber with simple syrup and lime juice, add a half-ounce of St. Germain and 1.5 ounces of Hendricks Gin."

Alanna Nuala

23, Greenpoint, gay
Where she works: The Dalloway, 525 Broome St., 212-966-9620



Newly single Alanna grew up on the Lower East Side and bartends to support her music project, MOON, in which she plays guitar. She has a cat named Banjo.

What would you make to impress someone?
"I'd make our namesake cocktail, Mrs. Dalloway. It is a delicious gin drink made with raspberry puree, but what impresses me most about it is that it contains egg white. ... For me, the unusual ingredient makes it all the more appealing. I love a girl who's not afraid to try something out of the ordinary."

JESSICA MIGLIO

Songza 'Girls'

Some girls buy their music on import vinyl. Some girls think all the best rock 'n' roll was made between 1965 and 1984. Jessa is one of those girls. Or perhaps we should say she's one of those "Girls." The playlist at www.songza.com/listen/girls-jessa-songza features the likes of The Who, Ramones, Patti Smith and Blondie (Hello, French version of "Sunday Girl"). Also, if you'd rather listen to a playlist that's representative of another one of the "Girls," plug in their names where Jessa's is. You're more likely to get "Dancing on My Own" with Hannah!

In honor of Australia Day, meet Chef Shaun Hergatt

Think beyond Outback Steakhouse this Saturday

PIOPPO STUDIOS

Hot Chef

Shaun Hergatt, the executive chef at ESquared Hospitality, comes to New York from the land down under.

With an endless list of accomplishments and awards under his belt, Hergatt is set to open Juni, a fine-dining restaurant in Midtown, this spring.

He grew up in Cairns, Australia, surrounded by passionate and professional cooking by way of his Scandinavian grandmother and his father, who Hergatt observed in the kitchen.

"It sounds cliche, but I knew I wanted to be a chef from a very young age," Hergatt says.

When he was 17, he pursued a four-year apprenticeship at a fine-dining restaurant in Cairns that trained him in classic French cooking.

After winning countless competitions, he moved to Sydney; a few years later, he became the Chef de Cuisine of The Dining Room at the Ritz-Carlton, Sydney.

Hergatt moved to the U.S. in 2003 and after a brief stint in both Washington, D.C., and Boston, and he became the executive sous chef of Atelier at The Ritz-Carlton, Central Park.

Hergatt promises that the experience at his new restaurant, which boasts only 55 seats, will be "extremely boutique."

"Juni is a compilation of my 21 years of cooking," he says.

Hergatt spent a lot of time at local farms collecting ideas for his new project. The restaurant will be very vegetable-centric, without being a vegetarian restaurant. Hergatt wants to use fresh ingredients that are in season.

"If we're in the middle of summer and strawberries are at their peak, we'll incorporate strawberries throughout the menu," he says. "I want to use products for their beauty and not manipulate them."

Australian vs. American food

From his experience, Hergatt says both Australians and New Yorkers appreciate good eats.

"The one thing about Australia is that it's very organic," he says. "The food there is very healthy. America is now changing its mind. The way people are looking at food here is changing. They want to know the origin of their food." Another major difference? Hergatt says Australians eat more veggies and less protein. "America is obsessed with steak," he says.

Winos welcome

Moleskine, which creates those ubiquitous little notebooks, is partnering with Astor Center for a tasting of wines from around the world next Friday at 6:30 p.m. Each guest will receive Moleskine Tasting Notecards and Moleskine Passions Wine Journal to take notes on. Wine event curator and Food Republic writer Brian Quinn hosts. Tickets are $45 at www.astorcenternyc.com.

Celebrate Australia Day ...

Saturday marks the big day — pick one of these places to party:
It's a PiePalooza at Pie Face! We're not talking about dessert though, we're talking about meat pies! Through Saturday, the Aussie shop is celebrating Australia Day and its one-year anniversary with samples and giveaways. 1691 Broadway and 509 Third Ave., 855-444-3388

West Australian Distilling Company and The Australian (20 W. 38th St # 1, 212-869-8601) are celebrating Australia Day in real time tomorrow — already Saturday in Australia — with raffles, contests, giveaways and Australian music.

... or Burns Day

Burns Night is a celebration of Scotland's national poet, Robert Burns. Highlands NYC (150 W. 10th St., 212-229-2670) is toasting to the literary hero with a prix fixe dinner, poetry reading, bagpipe player and haggis — a savory pudding inspired by Burns and considered to be the country's national dish.

Omme-God!

Ommegang is taking over five drafts at Alobar (46-42 Vernon Blvd., L.I.C., 718-752-6000) tonight and pairing them with Chef Ian Kapitan's nose-to-tail American dishes. Paying $55 gets you a five-course dinner with five beers.

CEREAL KILLER

Anthony nixes 'Cheerios' talk day before rematch with Celtics ▶ Boston defense concerns Knicks ▶ Locked in battle for division

Carmelo Anthony knew the topic of Honey Nut Cheerios would be rehashed the next time he faced Boston, but the MVP candidate refused to open old wounds when it came to discussing Celtics forward Kevin Garnett.

"We just want to win," Anthony said, adding the personal feud is done. "Honestly, it's not even on my mind right now. It hasn't been on my mind since that day."

The Knicks (25-14) are in a dogfight for first place, only a game ahead of the Nets (25-16) in the Atlantic Division, and Anthony said he'd rather focus on tonight's tilt in Boston than belabor the Jan. 7 skirmish with Garnett during which the Celtics forward allegedly said Anthony's wife "tastes like Honey Nut Cheerios."

▶ Anthony and Garnett will rekindle their rivalry in front of a hostile Boston crowd tonight.

Knicks at Celtics
8 p.m., TNT

"[Boston is] always a hostile environment anyway, so I'm not expecting nothing different. … It'll be fun, knowing what's at stake, with us facing Boston," Anthony said. "All that other stuff I'll leave behind."

Anthony said the bigger problem for the Knicks isn't Garnett's mouth, but rather his defensive intensity. He anchors a defense that is ninth in the league, allowing just 96 points per game. The last time these teams faced off, the Celtics won and a distracted Anthony shot 6-of-26 from the field. All told, the Knicks shot 41 percent and the Celtics shot 62 percent.

"Thursday's definitely a big game for myself and us as a team to get us on the right track," Anthony said yesterday after practice. "Do we owe them? Yes, [because] they came here and beat us. We want to go there and return the favor on their court. … We can't get that game [on Jan. 7] back."

Knicks notes

New York is still dealing with multiple injuries, specifically at the point.

- Raymond Felton said he'd "love to play" tonight in Boston, but team doctors are "holding me back." Felton said he could definitely play if it was up to him, but added the risk outweighs the rewards on a pinkie that suffered fractures in three places. Felton noted that if he broke it again by prematurely playing, he'd likely be out "months."

- The Knicks are 20-8 with Felton in the lineup and just 5-6 without him.
- Point guard Pablo Prigioni missed his second-straight practice on Wednesday. Mike Woodson officially listed him as questionable with a big toe injury, but Prigioni said he'll likely play and felt "better" after another day's rest.

Fantasy Sports

ADAM LEVITAN
ALEVITAN@METRO.US

DEADLINE DUTY

In one month, the NBA is going to go all fantasy on us. The time to stash is now.

With the early part of the season behind us, the chance to pick up a breakout star off waivers is long gone. Our best bet for a difference-maker now is the Feb. 21 trade deadline:

Do us a Favor

Both Al Jefferson and Paul Millsap are in the final year of their respective contracts. Moving one before the Jazz lose him for nothing is simply logical. It makes even more sense when they have a future star in Derrick Favors waiting in the wings. Although he's playing just 21.6 minutes, Favors is averaging 9.0 points, 6.2 rebounds, 1.5 blocks and 0.9 steals. Imagine what he could do with 30-plus minutes — something he's likely to get starting Feb. 22.

ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

▶ Derrick Favors's official coming out party is only one month away.

Pop goes Pau

The Lakers chose to hire Mike D'Antoni, a coach they know doesn't like to use two true bigs. They had to see this Pau Gasol debacle coming, meaning they should have something up their sleeve. If Pau gets traded, he'll quickly reemerge as a Top 30 option.

Lowry lurking

Kyle Lowry's first season in Toronto has been a disaster as he's fallen behind Jose Calderon. Buy low now. Calderon is far less talented and his contract is up after the season, making him a prime trade candidate. Lowry has Top 10 fantasy upside.

Top hoops adds

1 Earl Clark, PF, Lakers — Mike D'Antoni wants to go small, so Clark is starting at power forward and getting 32-to-34 minutes nightly.

2 Elton Brand, C, Mavs — With Dirk Nowitzki back, Dallas needs a defensive presence that Chris Kaman can't provide.

NFL news

Norv back

Norv Turner will call the plays in Cleveland, which is fantastic news for Trent Richardson. Norv loves to ride one back and has coached the NFL's rushing champ five times.

318 Touches for Richardson last season for the Browns offense
